HAVE YOU TRIED Baby Giant Family Pills Yet ?

If Not, and Troubled with

Dyspepsia, Headache, Constipation

or kindred Ddisease, ask your dealer for them, and read what Mrs·

C. E. Burpee says:

BABY GIANT MEDICINE CO.,

GENTLEMEN:—I have suffered for years with Salt Rheum, and have employed the best doctors in this country and Europe, and also tried every medicine I could hear of, but the horrible itching and breaking out became worse from day to day, until I had given up ho·e of being cured.

A neighbor advised me to try BABY GIANT FAMILY PILLS, which I did, and to my great surprise, I began to be better, and now am entirely cured and would no· be without a bottle of Baby Giants in the house, and write this hoping someone similarly affected may know of this remedy.

History.

Appleton was originally a plantation. Was in the state of Massachusetts till the formation of the district of Maine in 1820. Was incorporated as a town, January 28, 1829. The first records of the plantation are dated 1812, giving account of the meetings at the school house in Dist. No. 2, on Appleton ridge, "near Abiatha Richardson's."

The first town meeting was held April 13, 1829. February 20, 1843, a portion of the town of Hope was annexed to it, which was about 5 1-2 miles long, 2 1-4 miles wide on Union line and 1 3-4 miles wide on Searsmont line, and included the villages of McLain's and Packard's Mills.

The old Hope-Appleton line was about half way from the river to the ridge road and run nearly parallel to it.

In the spring of 1844 the inhabitants built a town house on land purchased of Willis Fish, and the first meeting was held in it June 25, 1844.

It is supposed that the first settlement was in 1775.

The village of ~~No.~~ Appleton formerly called McLain's Mills was settled by Fergus and Archibald McLain brothers who came from the town of Bristol, bought land of Gen. Henry Knox, Washington's Secretary of War, and built mills on the river. Fergus had a large amount of land on the west side and Archibald on the east side of the stream. Fergus was a "representative in the legislature at Boston eight years and at Portland five years. Was one of the framers of the Constitution of Maine, was first of the selectmen 22 successive years, when he declined further service but always participated in public affairs till the time of his death." Archibald gave the land for a burying ground, provided the citizens would build a wall around it.

The village of Appleton formerly known as Packard's Mills was settled by Reuben Packard, who built mills on the western side of the stream. This village was afterward known as Smith's Mills.

Burkettville is the western part of the town formerly called Burkett's Corner from one of its prominent citizens, Mr. Andrew Burkett, who built two mills on the Medomak river. Mr. Burkett was prominent in town affairs, representative to legislature, etc.

The town was named in honor of a wealthy merchant of Boston, who gave a bell which is in the steeple of the Baptist church.

The Friends meeting house, which stood in what is called the Quaker burying ground, was built in the early part of the century. The Friends met in silence for many years, but owing to lack of members finally discontinued. In 1868 the meeting house was moved and is now a part of the dwelling house of Mr. David Cummings.

In 1845 to 1848 the Georges canal was built through this valley from Thomaston to Searsmont. Freshets in spring, drougths in summer and ice in winter contributed to its downfall, but in spite of all these it did considerable business for several years. The first postoffice in town was at Pease's Corner, now known as Pitman's Corner, with Geo. Pease, Esq., P. M.

Later history we will omit as most of our readers are familiar with it.
